NO PLASTIC

Introduction

Plastic was given as a viable alternative to many other compounds of that era. It was cheap to produce, was fairly natural and was resistant to corrosion or any other form of decomposition.

Long decomposition period

The fact that plastic does not decompose is the main reason for instance, a cotton shirt may take between one to five months to fully decompose. A tin can will take upto 50 years to decompose. A plastic bottle, on the other hand, takes anywhere between 10 to 1000 years to fully decompose.

Effect of plastic on Animal life

The effect of plastic on animals are very apparent when animals consume plastic. Their digestive system cannot break it down, hence it jams up the animal's gastrointestinal tract eventually causing death. In the marine environment, plastic can cause mechanical damage to fish and other aquatic organisms.
